FAREWELL TO RUINED HOMES!

BY WM. GILMORE SIMS.

The bitter road of exile must be ours,
Oh! desolate children!—We must leave
The home—
These grand old woods, these venerable Towers,
These shrines of best affections—the sweet flowers,
That won all birds of beauty to their bloom—
The world of pleasant suns and starlight hours—
And wait on woe, to guide us where to roam!
We were content with this!—to forfeit
all—
The shrines, the blooms, the consecrated hall
And all the uncounted attributes of years,
And memories in sainted affection's tears, Linked with material things—That grow to things
Of soul, and put on spiritual wings!—
Yield all of wealth's possessions to our Slaves,
Nor murmur at the fate;
Nor pass away in hate;
Nor yield of heart and hope, with both
in thrall;
But how to yield our graves!—
To know that jackal footsteps will pollute
These sacred hillocks, and the reptiles crawl
Where we have laid the best—loved—the ALL—
And with foul presence, and irreverent foot, Trample the breast, and bow!—White kneest, white brow—
Bloom, beauty, tenderest love and innocent
truth,
Which fix'd our heart's existence in one vow, Blending all being—life, hope, love and
truth,
In one soul-consciousness—that still must be
Our welcoming presence in Eternity!
Ah! God, that, for the pure Christ, we should see
The Fetish in his brutal revelry;
And to the obscene rites of despots and
slaves,
Yield these, our graves! our graves! our graves!
Oh! saddest of sweet winds, ye have your work;
Wind further doom and night;
And though ye nurse no flowers,
Bring pleasant airs and odors on your flight—Keep, what we cannot, these dear graves of ours!

Sacred Carpet of Cairo.

Every year a caravan leaves Cairo for the holy places of Mecca and Medina. This pilgrimage, as is well known, every devout Moslem ought to perform once at least during his life. Those who are deterred by circumstances from going, make up for privation, somewhat, by sending presents hither to ornament the tomb of the Prophet, or to assist in its preservation and maintenance. For the reception of these presents there is in Cairo a sacred carpet, which is looked upon as being peculiarly holy. After it has served this purpose at the tomb of the Prophet, it is brought back with great ceremony to Cairo, and is an important object of reverence and veneration in the celebration of the fete-day of Mohammed. This fete-day occurs on the first of the Arab month, Rabi-ul-Fout, and the feast is called the Feast of Moullet-el-Nebi. When this day arrives, the chief of the Moslem priests at Cairo rides out in state to Hassanout, accompanied by crowds of faithful disciples, to meet the sacred carpet on its return. The head Imaun, preceding it on horseback, conducts it to the citadel of Cairo, where is the magnificent mosque built by Mehmet Ali. The Viceroy himself is standing at the door of the mosque, and bows again and again as the holy carpet is brought forward; the Imaun alights from his horse, and enters the grand mosque. Prayers having been said, the carpet is carried in solemn procession again to the citadel.

In the older part of Cairo, dating from the end of the thirteenth century, stands a particularly holy mosque, that of Kaloum, encompassed by narrow lanes, by filth, and by a teeming population. To this holy mosque, as its resting-place for the year, it is now the duty of the chief Imaun to carry off the sacred carpet. He is a good rider, and his long white beard makes him look venerable. A white horse, an Arab of pure breed, perfectly white and pearly in color, with one black lozenge on his forehead and another on his off hind leg, has been kept all the year in the stable, waiting for this grand occasion. He has been well fed, well groomed, carefully attended to; and comes forth out of his stable duly saddled, snorting, and curvetting, and pawing in an impatient sort of way. It is as much as four grooms can do to hold him and get the chief Imaun safely on his back. Once firmly seated in the saddle, the chief Imaun knows well how to hold his own. With the holy carpet tied carefully round him, he grasps the reins, and plunging, curvetting, and rearing, the white steed and his white-bearded rider, the head of the Moslem faith in Egypt, take their way through Cairo to the mosque of Kaloum.

The air is rent with the shouts of the faithful, and, as the sacred procession draws near the foot of the hill, and approaches the narrow lanes leading to the mosque of Kaloum, the multitude, men, women, and children, who have assembled from all parts of Egypt to take their part in this religious drama, prostrate themselves on their faces on the road. Closely packed, side by side, all lying still now, the whole street covered, they await the prancing steed, and venerable priest, and the holy carpet.

The horse prances over the prostrate forms, ever becoming more and more restive as he proceeds, his iron hoof here crunching down on a hard Egyptian skull, and there sinking into the yielding side of some graceful girl. On, ever faster and faster, the chief Imaun urges his steed, for the more rapid the ride, the less injury will be done. No cry of pain is heard from the sufferers; for as the horse pushes on, the crowd behind rise, and shout with all their might. Noise, and even more noise. Some are hurt one or two may be killed, for the road all the way to the mosque of Kaloum is thus paved with human beings; but their friends and relatives believe they went straight to Paradise. If killed outright; and, as to the wounded, they will go to Paradise too, some day, when fate so wills it, and in the meantime let let those who ought to look to them. Are we not all in the hands of fate? Such is the simple creed of the Moslem. It is all fate; life and death, and wounds and healing, all is fate.

The following observations of Madame Olympe Audouard, in her "Mysteres de l'Egypte," on this hideous ceremony, are so true, and so much to the purpose, that with them I conclude: "The present Viceroy, Ismael Pacha, was brought up in Paris. He is considered civilised, and he has certainly done much already to lighten the lamp of civilization in Egypt. I am astonished that he does not abolish—that he does not forbid this cruel custom. It was an act of humanity to do him honor, did he forbid it, and it would be all the easier, since it is not enjoined in the Koran. It only obtains in Egypt. It is a barbarous custom, not an ordinance of religion."

"It is true that the Egyptians, particularly the fanatics, pretend that the horse of the chief Imaun has the miraculous power not to wound or kill any one. On this account they lift up the injured and force them to walk all the same; and, as to the dead, they carry them off, saying the chief Imaun will cure them. If a European were to interfere, he would be abused. He could not be injured by the horse, for the honor of paying the road for that horse is reserved for true believers, and is not for a dog of a Christian."

CAROLINA TIMES.

R. F. WARRING, Editor.

CHARLOTTE.

Tuesday, September 7, 1869.

Who is responsible for the enormous debt that now burdens the people? What rendered it necessary that it should be made? The Standard says, the war. That is true so far as a portion of the debt is concerned. Then we'll admit that the party who caused the war is the one to blame for it. Previous to the Congress that formed the Confederation, the now States were Colonies, and in order to strengthen themselves in a war then about to ensue, they formed an alliance for mutual protection, and better to enable them to resist the mother government. At the termination of the Revolutionary struggle of 1776, these Southern States were treated with by name, and their sovereignty recognized by the British Government. Then, it was to "form a more perfect union" that the present constitution of the United States was made, every clause of which was equally obligatory on each of the contracting parties. Now, Webster distinctly announces, "that a contract broken by one party is broken as to all," and the question arises, who violated this agreement? The whole history of the country proves that it was not the South, then it must have been the North, and how? By an interference with the rights of the States which so endangered their peculiar institutions, as clearly to demonstrate that the objects for which the Government was formed had failed. And if Webster, the great expounder, is right, then the North is to blame for the war, and is responsible for the enormous debt which it has entailed, and then, as the war was unconsciously commenced, the debt depends neither upon moral or legal rights, but upon brute force. That it will be seen that the argument is clearly in favor of the repudiationists. But whether it would be expedient to revert to first principles and abstract right will depend upon the future course of the dominant party. The country has vast resources, and if proper economy in the expenditure, and a fair and honest rule is observed in laying the taxes, it may be better to pay an unjust debt than to unsettle all commercial affairs by refusing to do so. So for the present we are not in favor of agitating this question any further.

Washington Letter.

Correspondence of the Baltimore Gazette.

WASHINGTON, Sept 3, 1869.

I telegraphed a week ago rumors of a disagreement between President Grant and Secretary Boutwell. Further developments more than confirm these rumors. (I forwarded you particulars by telegraph last night.) It is now quite certain that, after much vacillation, the President will finally cut loose from the ultra Radical wing. Under Boutwell's guidance he sees nothing but defeat staring him in the face. Look at the result in Virginia and in Tennessee. It is not considered good generalship to change front in face of the enemy, but there really seems no other course to pursue. On the one hand there is certain defeat; but it is thought advisable to try a change of tactics, even though it be but a forlorn hope. Massachusetts will no longer be permitted to control the Government. Boutwell will have abundant leisure to mature his Presidential schemes in Boston, and Grant can rest on his laurels as a lawyer who manufactures partisan opinions, regardless of law or facts. Wilson will have to run his race for the United States Senate against the wily Butler, without backers; and Sumner, not being able to further mar, or meddle in, our foreign affairs, will have an opportunity to look into domestic affairs, of which he will no doubt avail himself. It must not be interred that the millennium has arrived. The President has simply had to give way before the inevitable logic of facts. He sees that the Boutwellites will as surely be defeated in Texas and Mississippi as they were in Virginia and Tennessee; and as the Conservative Republicans promise to support his policy—a rash promise, it must be confessed, as the ways of his policy are part finding out—he thinks it as well to be on the winning side. More and more the skies are clearing. There is light along the political horizon. Since writing what is above written, I have learned that the Virginia problem is solved. General Canby will soon proclaim the election. The Legislature will meet on the fourth Tuesday after. The test oath will not be exacted. The civil laws will be respected. All that is to be required of the Legislature is, that before proceeding to other action it shall conform with the reconstruction laws regarding preliminaries to the admission of the State. This, among other things, the adoption of the Fifteenth Amendment. Of course the assembling of the Legislature necessitates the installation of the Lieutenant Governor as presiding officer of the Senate. It follows, as a matter of course, that Governor Walker will also be installed. What has been granted to Virginia cannot be withheld from Tennessee, nor from Mississippi or Texas. The days of the ultra Radicals are numbered. The Boutwellites are nowhere; and Conservatives rejoice accordingly.

It appears that Attorney General Hoar is anxious to save his official bacon, and he therefore swings round with the President, vide his "opinion" on Virginia matters, of which you will receive a synopsis by telegraph.

A COTTON FACTORY IN NASHVILLE.

Nashville, (Tenn.) Banner says: "The establishment of a mammoth cotton manufactory, which has, during the past three months, been agitating the minds of the capitalists of our city, is now beyond a peradventure. The last dollar of the $300,000 stock required has been subscribed. The stockholders represent some of the strongest moneyed and energetic business men of Nashville. The manufactory will be located on eighteen acres of ground, including the McGavock Springs, donated by the North Nashville Land Company. It is a little singular that upon the very spot where, in 1777, the pioneers first pitched their tents, built their stockades to resist the constant invasions of the Indians, cleared their first land, and raised their first crops, so gigantic and industrial a concern as projected should be erected."

The Charleston News says: "It may be unhesitatingly asserted that during 1869 the twelve cotton States of this country will show more true prosperity than any other section of the world. The editor entering into details, tells us that there is every reason to anticipate a crop of three million bales of cotton, which at $108 per bale, will give $324,000,000; that these States will raise a corn crop worth $230,000,000; of sugar, wheat, tobacco and other crops, giving in all product of not less than $744,000,000, which, with a population of not over 11,000,000, will show an average of $64 per head, which largely exceeds that of the Northern and Western States."

Mr. Avery said he had a case in court the other day in Memphis. A little fellow was introduced as a witness. The counsel on the other side desired that the witness should be interrogated touching his knowledge of the responsibility of an oath. The judge (Radical) propounded the usual questions. "My little man, what are you about to do?" "Be sworn as a witness in the case." "Are you acquainted with the nature, obligations and responsibilities of an oath?" "Yes sir, I think I am." "Well then, what do you think would be done with you if you were to swear to a lie?" "I don't know, sir, without the Radicals would nominate me for Congress."

To Cook Vegetables.

A German professor says that if any portion of a vegetable be boiled in pure distilled or rain water, and another in water in which a little salt has been added, a decided difference is perceptible in the tenderness of the two. Vegetables boiled in pure water are vastly inferior in flavor. This inferiority may go so far, in the case of onions, that are almost entirely destitute of either taste or odor; though when cooked in salt water, in addition to the pleasant salt taste is a peculiar sweetness and a strong aroma. They also contain more soluble matter than when cooked in pure water. Water which contains one-twentieth of its weight in salt is far better for cooking vegetables than pure water, because the salt hinders the solution and evaporation of the soluble and flavoring principles of vegetables.

IMPORTANT TO BANKRUPTS.—The Petersburg Index gives the following list of information of importance to bankrupts:

"One of the most important requirements of the Bankrupt Law is that which requires the party applying for its benefits to file his petitions for a discharge within twelve months after his adjudication as a bankrupt. The importance of this provision seems to have escaped the attention of many interested parties. When the time allowed to expire, without a compliance with the law, the Registers in different parts of the State have no further option than to strike the delinquent parties from their records. Should he afterwards desire to try the law again he will have to begin de novo and will besides have to surrender assets equal to 50 per cent of his indebtedness."

"It has also been decided that a person who applies for the benefits of the act under the fifty per cent clause will be entitled to the property exempted whether he receives his discharge or not. That amount will be secured to the applicant in perpetuity. This is a very important matter to many people, and it effects quite a number of cases already in progress in the State."

A Wonderful Canary.

At Cleves, a short time ago, a canary bird was exhibited, the wonderful tricks and feats performed by which made quite a sensation in the neighborhood. The exhibitor brought the bird forward, placed him on his forefinger, and said, "My dear Bigon, (the name of the bird) you are now about to appear before a number of talented and distinguished persons; take pains, therefore, that you may not disappoint the expectations which have been raised about you. You have won your laurels, do not suffer them to wither."

All the time his master was making this speech, the bird appeared to be listening, having placed himself in an attitude of the most thoughtful attention, bending down his ear towards the man's mouth, and whenever the exhibitor ceased speaking, nodding his head in the most expressive manner. It ever a nod was intelligible, indeed eloquent, it was this.

"Very good," said his master. "Let us now see that you are a bird of honor. Favor us with a little song." The bird sang, "Kie, that is too harsh, it sounds like the croaking of a hoarse raven; something sweeter." The bird began to whistle, piping as if his little throat had been turned into a flute.

"Quicker!" or "slower!" the owner kept exclaiming. "Quite right, but what in the world have you done with your head and your feet? no wonder that you get out of tune, if you forget to beat time, Monsieur Bigon. That's a good Bigon, bravo! bravo! little fellow."

Everything that he was thus set to do, or of which he was reminded, he did with the most wonderful exactitude. With his head and his feet he beat time, and followed every change of time and every variation in the movement he was performing. The cries he sang were most correctly rendered, and followed the strictest musical laws.

"Bravo! bravo!" sounded from all sides of the room. "And would you show your gratitude for all this praise?" exclaimed the exhibitor. The bird bowed most respectfully to the audience. The next trick which the little bird exhibited was to play the soldier with a straw for a gun.

"You've had a hard piece of work to do my poor Bigon," said the exhibitor, "and you must be getting tired. Just a couple more feats, and you shall have a rest. Show the ladies how to make a courtesy."

The bird drew one of his little feet behind the other, and sank and raised himself again with the utmost ease and grace.

"That's right, my little fellow; now for a polite bow."

He made one, bending his head and scraping with his foot.

"Now, let's wind up with a waltz! Quick off and give us the elegance, the vivacity the fire with which this command was obeyed raised the delight and admiration of the audience to its highest pitch. Bigon himself seemed to feel the thirst of approbation, shook his wings, and sang a song, in the notes of which one seemed to recognize the exultation of a conqueror."

"You have behaved in what I call a capital way," said the exhibitor, while he fondled his feathered favorite. "Just take a little nap, while I step into your place."

The canary feigned sleep, and acted his part so well that he looked as if Morpheus had been exerting all his powers upon him. First he shut one eye, then the other, then he began nodding; last of all, he sank so completely on one side that several persons among the audience stretched out their hands to prevent his falling, and immediately he felt their touch he turned round and lay down upon the other side. At last he appeared to fall asleep in good earnest, upon which the man took him off his finger and placed him on the table, where, as the master told the audience, the bird would sleep as long as he himself took his place and performed his feats. Scarcely, however, had he begun doing this, before a large black cat sprang upon the table, seized the canary within the teeth, and in spite of all the efforts of those present to save Bigon, rushed with him out of the window. The poor exhibitor was inconsolable, as for some years, the little creature had procured him a subsistence.

IMPORTANT DECISION.—The late Confederacy has been before the Supreme Court in the case of a stockholder in the Charleston Gaslight Company, praying for relief against the sequestration of his stock by decree of the Confederate Courts. Chief Justice Chase, in delivering the opinion of the Court, holds that the proceedings in question were absolutely null and void, and grants the relief prayed for. The Chief Justice holds that no act of the Confederate Government or of any State Government at enmity with the United States, and which may conflict the rights of a loyal citizen, can possess validity.

Advices from North Carolina are to the effect that there has been a considerable negro immigration into that State from the southern tier of Virginia counties. As North Carolina has a white majority, and will infallibly upset the present rotten hull called the State government at the first election, it is quite likely that the disgusted negroes will repeat the process with North Carolina soil, and seek "their rights" in South Carolina. The circumstance is of interest as illustrating the tendency to concentration of the negro population in the far South. White immigration will first fill up the border, and as it fills, push the negro southward before it.—N. Y. World.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

The Fever and Ague Season.

When the leaves begin to change, remittent and intermittent fevers make their appearance. From the surface of the earth, bathed nightly in heavy dew, from marshes and swamps saturated with moisture, from the dying foliage of the woods, from festering pools and sluggish streams, the sun of September evolves clouds of miasmatic vapor perilous to health and life. The body, deprived by the burning temperature of July and August of much of its vigor and elasticity, is not in a proper plight to resist malarial; and hence all diseases that are produced by a depraved condition of the atmosphere are particularly prevalent in the Fall.

There is no reason why the health of thousands of people should be thus sacrificed. A preparatory course of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS is a certain protection against the epidemics and endemic which Autumn brings in its train. Let all dwellers in unhealthy localities, liable to such visitations, give heed to the warning and advice conveyed in this advertisement, and they may bid defiance to the foul exhalations which are now rising, night and day, from the soil around them. No farmhouse in the land should be without this invaluable exhilarant and invigorant at any period of the year, but especially in the Fall. It is not safe to go forth into the chill, misty atmosphere of a September morning or evening with the stomach unfortified by a tonic, and of all the tonics which medical chemistry has yet given to the world, HOSTETTER'S BITTERS are admitted to be the purest, the most wholesome, and the most beneficial.

I let all who desire to escape the bilious attacks, bowel complaints and malarious fevers, take the BITTERS at least twice a day throughout the present season. It is as wholesome as it is infallible. Look to the trade mark, "HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS," engraved on the label and embossed on the bottle, and their revenue stamp covering the cork, as counterfeits and imitations abound.

[From the new "DOMINION"]

At this season, when coughs and colds are so prevalent, an effectual remedy, and one easily obtained, is Perry Davis' Vegetable "Pain Killer." It is a new nostrum, vended by unknown agents, but has stood the test of over twenty years; and those who use the article internally or externally, will connect with it grateful recollections of its worthy inventor.—Hastings' Chronicle, C. W.

PAIN KILLER.—The testimonials borne to the efficacy of this valuable medicine are sufficient to warrant its introduction into every house. Our own opinion is that no family should be without a bottle of it for a single hour. In fresh wounds, aches, pains, sores, &c., it is the most effectual remedy we know of. A bottle will last for a very long time, and its low price places it within the reach of all. Our readers will remember that the Messrs. Perry Davis & Son have opened a house in Montreal, whence Canadian orders are supplied. News, St. John's, C. E.

We are glad to learn that the "Pain Killer" is having so large a sale in our city. We have every reason to believe it to be an almost never failing cure for pain, and a medicine that no family should be without. Montreal Pilot.

Davis' PAIN KILLER.—From the reports of dealers in this city, we think no proprietary medicine has had a larger sale. Its valuable properties, as a speedy cure for pain, cannot fail to be generally appreciated, and no family should be without it, in case of accident, or sudden attack of dysentery, diarrhoea, cholera morbus, and even Asiatic cholera, yields to its magic power, as we see by reports from those sections in the south-west where the disease has been particularly virulent the past summer.—Montreal Transcript.

 For Anthracite or Bituminous coal, have been in have proved to be the best Fire-place Heaters manufactured and put in operation. They are getting to be generally used, often in the place of stoves, for heating the lower and upper rooms in dwellings and offices. Two or three Stoves heating the largest dwellings, and besides, are quite ORNAMENTAL and ILLUMINATING, having all the beauty and cheerfulness of an open grate fire, but are more ECONOMICAL, CLEAN and EASY TO CLEAN, and A LARGER AMOUNT OF HEAT. We want to refer to thousands of families who have them in use.

 We manufacture our own COOKING STOVES, and we guarantee them to be equal to any sold for heating and cooking. We have Stoves to take in long wood and with large ovens, and are superior Stoves for baking. We are getting out some new patterns of Cooking Stoves, that will burn Bituminous coal, hard coal, or wood. They will have a beautiful finish, and will stand among the No. 1 Cook Stoves.
 Our Cooking Stoves are Baltimore made, and we guarantee the plates. Our Cooking Ranges are pronounced the best and cheapest in the market.
 Baking of all kinds can be done in our Ranges as quickly and equally well as in a brick oven. We will manufacture S. B. SEXTON'S new patent Hot-

SCOTCH SNUFF

Has been fully tested and pronounced by all am-teur smokers to be the best snuff now in use.
 Its superior taste and purity from all drugs and injurious ingredients, commonly used in the preparation of other snuffs, has gained it a wide reputation.
 Do not fail to try it for you will like it.
 Ask for it and take the other and see that our name is on every package.

 Notice.—The high reputation that our snuff has attained has induced certain manufacturers to imitate our trade name, and the superior quality of our snuff does not lay in the trade mark, but the superior quality of tobacco it is manufactured of.
